

William Friedman

Treasurer

William Friedman is a Trial Attorney in the International Unit of the Money Laundering and Asset Recovery Section (MLARS) of the Criminal Division of the U.S. Department of Justice. While at MLARS, Mr. Friedman completed an approximately one-year long detail as a Special Assistant United States Attorney in the Criminal Division of the U.S. Attorney's Office for the Eastern District of Virginia. He also obtained his Master of Laws (LL.M.) degree in National Security Law from the Georgetown University Law Center, where he graduated with Distinction and Dean's List honors and served as an editor for the Journal of National Security Law & Policy.

Before joining the government, Mr. Friedman worked as a senior attorney at Schulte Roth & Zabel and then Sullivan & Cromwell for thirteen years. Before his law firm experience, he served as a special counsel in the New York Stock Exchange Enforcement Division and a law clerk to a New York State Supreme Court Justice.

During his legal career, Mr. Friedman has published numerous articles on national security and financial crime laws, namely, money laundering, counter-terrorist financing, economic and trade sanctions, and anti-corruption laws.

Mr. Friedman also has a Master of Business Administration (M.B.A.) in Finance and a Bachelor of Arts (B.A.) in Political Science with a minor in Near Eastern Studies.

Before becoming a Treasurer of the BADC, Mr. Friedman was a member of the BADC's Board of Directors. Mr. Friedman is also a member of the American Bar Association's Committee on Law and National Security.
